

Aaron Z Lewis — $500 Starter Stipend

Draft email opening the stipend thread, written so the thread itself is the record for Daylight Computer.

Prepared by Honey · general channel · August 14, 2026

Written to do two jobs at once: open the thread with Aaron, and produce the paper trail Daylight Computer will want. Everything Daylight needs to read later is stated in the email itself, so the thread is the record – no separate memo has to be reconstructed in November.

Subject: Paragonday × Month Offline DC – $500 starter stipend

The email

Aaron –

Really glad you were on the call today. What you sketched – a whole week of the challenge given over to time, and a Paragonday-coded invitation to go with it – is the most concrete adoption of Horizon Time anyone has proposed, and it's happening in three weeks. So let's make it official.

The money. Daylight Computer gave Paragonday a $10,000 donation, currently held by Other Internet as our fiscal sponsor. I'd like to send $500 of it to you as a starter stipend for bringing Horizon Time into the DC cohort's week on time, September 17–24. You raised the number and I think it's right: it's small enough to stay a collaboration rather than a contract, and it does the thing you named – it leaves a paper trail.

What it's for. Not a deliverables list I'm holding you to. It's the reason the money moved, written down:

1. Time Card – the paper carrier that replaces the big-tech calendar for the week. Sun times, the week's plan, the numbers you can't look up anymore, and the habit tracker, on one folded page. We have a generator; the current draft is Brooklyn and we're regenerating it for DC before the 17th.
2. Text service – text `SUNSET` to a number, get the sunset time back. You said one keyword is enough and I agree. We're looking at whether it can ride on the toll-free number you already use for voicemail.
3. Sunset field trip – the pair-up outing, with an invitation that carries no clock time on it. It says meet at tilset –1:00, so showing up requires finding out when the sun sets. You pick the site.

4. Horizon time habit – one commitment tethered to the sky instead of a number. Wi-Fi off at pastset. Clocks covered at pastset +2:00. Whatever the person picks.

Pick the ones that actually fit your cohort and drop the rest. If only the time card and the walk happen, that's a successful pilot.

What I'd love back, whenever it's natural. Not a report – evidence that the thing was real:

- A handful of photos, or scans of whatever people drew
- Two or three participant lines about how their sense of time changed
- Your own paragraph on what worked and what didn't, especially the didn't
- Any printed artifact we can photograph

The reason I'm asking is straightforward: I want to tell Daylight that their money put a paper time card in the hands of real people in DC, and I'd rather show them than describe it.

Logistics. The funds sit with Other Internet, so there's a step on their side to release them – I'm looping them in on this thread so we can sort out whether they need an invoice or a W-9 from you, and where to send it. Would like to have it out before the cohort starts September 3rd.

Two last things. First, the standing offer from the call: if Buzz gets frustrating at any point, say so out loud in the channel and someone will get you unstuck. The whole point is that you don't have to hold the how. Second, DC is the origin cohort and 1-844-FLIPOFF already exists, which makes you the right pilot for the text service rather than us – so tell us what you want it to do and we'll build to that.

Thank you for taking this on.

Notes before sending

- CC line. I don't know Other Internet's disbursement process or the right contact there, so I left the CC unresolved. If they need a separate internal request first, send Aaron the email without the CC and start the Other Internet thread in parallel – the email reads fine either way.
- Daylight, and whether there's a grant agreement. If the $10k came with reporting terms, the deliverable language above should be checked against them. I don't have that document.
- Date to hit. DC cohort starts Thu Sep 3; the week on time is Sep 17-24. Getting the stipend out before Sep 3 means it lands before the work rather than after, which reads better to a donor and better to Aaron.
- The Brooklyn→DC swap is a real blocker, not a formality. Every current material – `TIME_CARD.pdf`, the field-trip run-of-show, the text-service copy – is written for Brooklyn. DC sunsets during the week on time run 7:14p → 7:03p (11 minutes earlier across the week; 47 minutes across the full cohort, Sep 3 → Oct 3). Regenerate before anything is printed.
